

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method and device for displaying radio frequency information, including a circuit or processor for retrieving various radio frequency information that are correlated to each of the various communication and navigational frequencies, 5 including such information as the name of the facility transmitting, the frequency station type, the station identifier, the runway number, and the final approach course. The method and device include means for displaying the retrieved radio frequency information.